

Voicemail Left for Amanda LeClair

Hey Amanda, it's Dusty. I sent you that paper almost a week ago and nothing, not even a quick note. I guess silence is easier than honesty now.

I'm just trying to have a real conversation with people, but apparently that's too much for this place. Everyone's hiding behind their committees and empty slogans while the whole system fucking collapses in front of us.

You know exactly what I'm talking about. You've seen it too. I'm not outta line for asking questions. I'm not outta line for being angry. What's out of line is pretending everything's fucking fine while students sit there asleep and faculty act like parrots.

Call me back, Amanda, please. I need to know if there's anyone left who actually believes in truth around here.

Just please call me back.
